It has been a long and very hot summer. We hope you were able to spend long days at a library, browsing, reading and attending programs and other events. I hope you had numerous laugh out loud moments.

The waning summer days merge into fall, not always seamlessly, and with their own set of challenges. Let the Library’s programs and services assist you, when possible.

We look forward to another Library signature program, One Book, One Read, which will be held at the Central Library on Saturday, August 10th. Please join us and welcome the author, Nikki Erlick as she discusses her bestselling book. The event’s moderator will be the veteran journalist, Monica Kaufman Pearson. The program is sponsored by the Library Foundation.

I hope you continue to make the Library a destination place for you and your family. There are the traditional books and materials; online resources; Career Online High School; GED and ESL classes; blood pressure cuffs for check out; as well as Dementia kits available for you. Research materials await your discovery.

The Library continues to provide some social services that may make a difference in your life or that you can share with others.

It is no secret that the Library staff works very hard to meet your literacy and digital needs. We look forward to seeing you this fall.

CONGRATS TO OUR CERTIFIED PUBLIC MANAGER GRADUATES

FulcoLibrary staff recently completed a nine-month Certified Public Manager (CPM) program with the University of Georgia. The CPM program is an intensive multi-part program where participants learn about their organizations and how to lead and manage more effectively. Focused on self-awareness, collaboration, and process improvement, the program is designed to improve the quality and efficiency of government agencies by developing the effectiveness and professionalism of its managers.

Over the years, dozens of library employees have taken part in the CPM program, bringing new and improved leadership skills to their library branches throughout the County. Congratulations to all our graduates throughout the years. A special congrats to our May graduates, including: Alpharetta Branch Manager, Jeff Stinson; Auburn Avenue Research Library Librarian, Okezie Amalaha; Central Librarian, Vikki Walters; Administrative Coordinator, Zenobia Claxton; Milton Branch Support Supervisor, Jason Jonestock; Northeast/Spruill Oaks Branch Assistant Manager, Ellen Baxter; Peachtree Branch Manager, Robyn Lim and Volunteer Coordinator, Marcy Meyers.
Thirty years ago, in 1994, the landscape of Atlanta was vastly different. The Internet as we know it today was in its infancy, and Fulton County and the City of Atlanta was pulsating with the energy of the upcoming Summer Olympics in 1996. It was a time when many of our revered civil rights leaders still walked among us, inspiring change and igniting hope.

Today, we pay homage to the Auburn Avenue Research Library—a beacon of knowledge and culture that has stood the test of time. This institution opened its doors when there were very few like it, and even today, it remains a rare treasure. Our library and its original staff embarked on an uncharted journey without a blueprint, crafting a legacy that has become a cornerstone of our community.

The changes in Atlanta since the library’s inception reflect a city in constant evolution. From the skyline that has stretched ever upward to the cultural tapestry that has become ever more diverse, Atlanta has grown alongside this library. The population has surged, and with it, the stories and histories that weave together to form the fabric of our shared experience.

Now, as we emerge from the challenges of the pandemic, the Auburn Avenue Research Library is poised to usher in a new era. Our dedicated staff, bolstered by additional team members, stands ready to continue preserving our invaluable artifacts—letters, photographs, manuscripts—that shed light on African American history. We’re returning to post-Covid-19 activities with renewed vigor, ensuring that our legacy thrives.

This library is special, not just for its collections or its programming, but for its spirit. It is a place where the past meets the present, where stories are told, and where history is alive. It is a testament to the resilience and strength of a community that has overcome adversity time and time again.

As we look to the future, we do so knowing that the legacy of the Auburn Avenue Research Library is in good hands. It is a legacy of empowerment, education, and community. It is a legacy that we all share, and one that we will continue to build upon for generations to come.

Thank you, each and every one of you, for being a part of this journey. Here’s to thirty years of the Auburn Avenue Research Library, and to many more years of knowledge, discovery, and growth.
From opening day in 1994, the Auburn Avenue Research Library on African American Culture and History has strived to provide access, preserve culture, and educate the community on the importance of African American History. To celebrate the milestone of 30 years of service, we invite you to engage, visit and continue to support AARL. Our signature celebration will take place November 14-16, 2024 with a conference, “Collecting, Researching and Writing While Black”, which will look at past scholarship and think about the future of documenting the Black experience. Let’s take a look back at the last year of AARL.

For most of us, the past couple of years have been full of unpredictable challenges, both globally and locally. Despite all these changes the programming division of the Auburn Avenue Research Library has remained committed to providing our community with a variety of events that showcase the fruits of ongoing cultural and scholarly labor.

Our community partners have remained a key part throughout this journey. Without the stalwart collaboration of partners like Charis Circle, The Department of Africana Studies at Georgia State University, the Southern Center for Human Rights, Giwayen Mata, and many other local artists, activists, scholars, and grassroots organizations, we wouldn’t be who we are today.

We continue onward with optimism, 2023 and 2024 have been some of our best years yet. What follows is a brief retrospective at some of the highlights of this past year.

2023 marked the 50th anniversary of the Hip Hop genre. We celebrated this historic moment with weekly discussions, film screenings, workshops, and performances. During this time our auditorium featured screenings of...
“Around the Way Dreams”, by artist Melissa Alexander offers a documentation of HipHop’s first playground love, the “around the way girl”.

Our frequent collaborators at Charis Books and More packed the house several times on Janette Beckman’s Female Rappers class of ’88, Alexander’s “Around the Way Dreams” offers a documentation of HipHop’s first playground love, the “around the way girl”.

Last year also saw the 30th anniversary of Sistagraphy: Atlanta’s African -American Women Photographers’ Collective. This anniversary event was held in remembrance of the organization’s founder Sheila Turner. The exhibit was complemented by a variety of gallery talks, an accompanying opening reception, and a remembrance ceremony held by members of the group and other community partners.

We can’t fail to mention the annual Atlanta Radical Bookfair which hosted a wide variety of publishers from all over the South, and featured impressive grassroots speakers such as Tchaiko and Eusi Kwayana, Art Bouman, Matt Jessome, and Dr. Bettina Love. The Bookfair provided a space to engage in rich dialog on the most pressing local and global issues regarding social justice.

Lastly, our year always ends with Kwanzaa Celebration, and last year was no exception. The dynamic, soul stirring, all sistah, dance, percussion, and vocal ensemble Giwayen Mata, together with the Master of Ceremonies Dr. Chike Akua, held a festive performance commemorating the importance of tradition, community and perseverance.

This year promises to be just as fruitful as last year. We hope to see you soon at any of our upcoming events.

Sistagraphy is Atlanta’s African-American Women Photographer’s Collective films such as Scratch, The Art of Rap, Beat Street and the ensuing post-screening conversations boasted of many movers and shakers from within the Hip Hop world such as King Quic, Mr. Collipark (aka DJ Smurf), and Graffiti artist Antar K. Fierce. Atlanta’s own Red Clay Scholar–Dr. Regina Bradley– also commemorated the occasion by leading several discussions on the South’s role in the development of Hip Hop, culminating with a lecture on the career of André Benjamin of Outkast fame.

The capstone of this year-long celebration was the ongoing gallery exhibit “Around the Way Dreams: Redux” by local Atlanta artist Melissa Alexander. Playing over with several book release events, discussions and celebrations, many of which can be accessed on our YouTube page.

The original 1994 opening day staff of the Auburn Avenue Research Library share their experiences at the 30th Anniversary Kickoff.
As the Auburn Avenue Research Library marks its 30th anniversary, delve into the vibrant history and archives that highlight Atlanta’s rich tapestry of black LGBTQ experiences.

The ZAMI records

Atlanta has a long history of supporting the LGBTQ community, especially its black members. As a repository of the black experience, AARL proudly represents the LGBTQ community, shining a bright light on a rainbow of precious gems once obscured by hate and prejudice. Our archive collections reflect an array of stories and experiences of this community.

Crack open our vault, and you’ll find the ZAMI records. They contain the materials of a collective of lesbians “SISTAHS.” It was founded in 1989 for women of African descent by Mary Anne Adams, a social worker, activist, and public health researcher. The term ZAMI stands for women who work together as friends and lovers. It is a Carriacou word taken from the writings of Audre Lorde, a black feminist poet and LGBTQ advocate.

AARL

In the Life Atlanta records

The In the Life Atlanta records highlight the annual Black Gay Pride celebration. It is a rare platform for LGBTQ artists and thinkers to perform before live audiences, lead workshops, and interact with fans during book signings. ITLA was the backbone of numerous other LGBTQ initiatives in Atlanta, sponsoring organizations like AIDS Walk Atlanta.

The ensemble’s creator, Anthony “Tony” Daniels, is popularly known as the “Architect of the Black Gay Mecca.” AARL houses his papers. Within them, you will find remnants of a dramatist’s life, including letters, diaries, journals, drafts, scripts, and rewrites.

Providing service for all

The city of Atlanta has a strong legacy of supporting its citizens. In January 2024, Mayor Andre Dickens announced a $6.4 million plan to end homelessness. The AARL preserves the histories of many local social service initiatives.

We have materials from the Jean Childs Young Institute (JCYI), which improved children’s lives in Atlanta through outreach projects like conferences, forums, and life skills classes. Jean Childs Young advocated for equal access to education.

Our archive also includes records on Jesse O. Thomas, founder of the School of Social Work at Atlanta University and first director of the National Urban League’s Field Secretary Office in Atlanta. His work is documented through various materials such as minutes, reports, manuscripts, and photographs.

Treasuring Children’s and Young Adult Literature at AARL

Are you aware that the Auburn Avenue Research Library boasts an extensive collection of young adult and children’s literature? Although our main focus is research, it is equally important to highlight the wide range of resources we offer young minds. We warmly invite parents and educators to explore our diverse range of opportunities to engage and inspire the next generation of exceptional thinkers. Engage with a diverse selection of compelling and thought-provoking books that have mesmerized both readers and critics, and relish the unparalleled joy of reading.

Uncover the Africana Children’s Literature Collection, a vast assortment of enchanting tales that honor African traditions and history. Immerse yourself in the magic of outstanding children’s literature spanning from 1969 to the current era, as you explore the renowned Coretta Scott King Award collection and the Caldecott collection.

where we empower you to discover a world of knowledge and unleash your potential. Our extensive resources allow you to confidently elevate your comprehension and achieve your personal and professional goals. Our collection provides resources in various formats dedicated to the African, African American, and African diasporic experience.

Join us on an unparalleled journey of discovery as we commemorate our 30th anniversary. Let’s delve into the Historical Black Newspapers and unearth a wealth of knowledge that will unveil the secrets of the past preserved within 196+ years of newspapers.

The emergence of black newspapers during the Civil War era marked a significant transformation in American media. It became a beacon of hope for Black America, filling the void left by mainstream newspapers. With an impressive count of 40 black newspapers in circulation, the Black Press gained momentum and influence. Publications like the Chicago Defender and the Pittsburgh Courier played a pivotal role in this expansion, raising their voices against racial injustice and celebrating Black achievements. At the Auburn Avenue Research Library, our extensive collection of newspapers is easily accessible through databases and microfilm, granting you unparalleled access to a wealth of invaluable resources. Furthermore, we take immense pride in our unwavering dedication to keeping pace with the ever-evolving news landscape, as evidenced by our subscriptions to over forty-one esteemed black newspapers nationwide. Stay well-informed and broaden your perspectives with the latest news from these esteemed publications. Come on over to AARL and dive into our amazing collection! We can’t wait to have you here. Newspapers included in ProQuest are detailed above.

The library reaches a larger audience through volunteer partnerships. AARP Foundation trains volunteers to reenter the workforce, prepare taxes and teach safe driving to patrons. AmeriCorps and Peace Corps volunteers share their national service programs. Atlanta Authors, Friends groups and Roswell Reads bring local and national authors for book talks. The Chattahoochee Nature Center, Cooperative Extension and Public Works teach about gardening, pollinators and keeping rivers clean.

The Collective Learning Academy, Eaton Academy and The Lionheart School partner to provide community-based learning projects for their students. National Charity League and the Young Men’s Service League creates time for students to volunteer with their mothers. Roswell Staff Volunteer Liaison Julia Ratledge shared, “I cannot express how happy I am to have the Eaton students back at the Roswell Library. This is what it's all about – people helping people. Win, win for all of us.”

For over 24 years, Junior League of Atlanta (JLA) volunteers have been supporting library programs. They are providing Journey to Literacy storytime and crafts on Saturdays at four libraries and fund all supplies, plus copies of the book for each child. United Way’s Learning Spaces leads children’s programs at four libraries every month. Metropolitan Branch Staff Volunteer Liaison Angela Cody shared, “Learning Spaces provides different sections for toddlers to learn the alphabet, colors, music and outside activities. I can see the participant numbers increasing and receive many questions from the community of how to get involved.”
Library Access is published four times a year by the staff of the FulcoLibrary Marketing Department.
